Know What to Ask Your Interviewer?

To appear interested in a position, you need to ask questions to your interviewer. Here are some questions you can ask:

- Is this a new Position?
- What are the day-to-day expectations and responsibilities of the job?
- How would you describe a typical week/day in this position?
- How will my leadership responsibilities and performance be measured? And by whom? How often?
- How many people work in this office/department?
- What are the job timings? Will I be required to sit back often?
- How much travel is expected?
- Is relocation a possibility?
- What is the organization's policy on transfers to other divisions or to other offices?
- Does the organization support ongoing training and education for employees to stay current in their fields?
- What is the typical workweek? Is overtime expected?
- What are the prospects for growth and advancement?
- Is there a formal process for advancement within the organization?
- Would you like a list of references?
- If I am extended a job offer, how soon would you like me to start?
- What are the traits and skills of people who are the most successful within the organization?
- How is the department perceived within the organization?
- Are there any other questions I can answer for you?
